

Hello my glorious friends of the Dexter Drama Club. My name is Noah Wiseman as of the school year 2021/2022 I will be a Sophomore in grade. In the past two years despite circumstances I have been as active as possible with the DDC taking part in five productions playing Nikko the Monkey in Wizard of Oz, Doormouse in the 3D Show Alice, Green in the 3D show Crafting a Killer, multiple background roles in both Sherwood The Adventures of Robin Hood and Tarzan and two Improv workshops along with the shows. This year I am in the hopes of taking an even more active role in the club by becoming an Improv Captain this upcoming year. Improv was the first thing I ever did for the DDC and I have always returned back to it. I've always enjoyed the fun stories and creative choices created by my extraordinarily talented peers as well as getting the opportunity to learn so much about acting without a script and how to tell stories. As an Improv Captain I am hoping to pass on many lessons that I have learned about Improv with both my good friends as well as any new comers that have the privilege of joining us. We would be learning about many tips and tricks such as trusting your instincts and not overthinking the story's building self confidence, how to use yes/and working together with a partner and establishing a teamwork cause there is no way we could complete a production if we all work alone, and most importantly I just want to let everyone have some fun every week. I go to Improv and I am always finding myself and my friends laughing and always having a fun time and I want to make sure we all still get to have fun every Friday. Not only is this good for learning but Improv is almost like a weekly bonding event allowing us to become closer and make new friends as well as strengthen our relationships with our old ones too. I have been developing several new Improv games for the new year that we can play together should I be elected as a captain. For proof allow me to spill the beans on one of my new ideas. This game I am currently calling "Rewrite Time" This game is basically a combination of "Coming Soon to Theaters" and "New Choice" . It is a four player game though I could see it being possible to have five or maybe even six players joining in though four seems the most reasonable. The game has two people one who is writing a book and the other being their friend and the writer is telling the story out loud and the other two players would be recreating it however the friend would be rewriting key plot points of the previous scene in their own image forcing the actors to alter the scene as the two friends debate different scenes and how they would play out. It definitely sounds better in my head than when typing it out but I do think it could be really fun and it isn't the only game I have developed but if you're really interested in those other games then you should probably elect me. If I am elected as an Improv Captain I promise to bring my glorious friends tons of fun and great storytelling while also teaching you new methods of acting and how to apply it both in Improv or even on stage for those who do the main productions. I will always be there for everyone with a kind heart and an open mind and I will never let anyone feel anything less than happy and enjoying themselves. You've all been such amazing people to me and now it is time that I return that favor to you guys just be sure to break a leg on stage since you'll all be in our Improv cast (Just a funny not funny pun for everyone)

Sincerely Noah Wiseman
